Bytown Gunners Firepower Museum/Musée de la Puissance de feu des artilleurs de Bytown: 'Funeral Urns' — 'Urnes funéraires'

The Bytown Gunners' Firepower Museum (through the Regimental charity, the Bytown Gunners Order, BGO), is offering to sell to interested persons, copies of its Regimental funeral urns. Each funeral urn has been specifically created from used brass 105 mm gun salute "casings," purchased by the BGO from government surplus.

Le musée de la puissance de feu des Artilleurs de Bytown (par l'intermédiaire de l'organisme de bienfaisance Régimentaire, l'Ordre des Artilleurs de Bytown, OAB) offre de vendre aux personnes intéressées des copies de ses urnes funéraires régimentaires. Chaque urne funéraire a été spécialement créée à partir des douilles d'obus en laiton de 105 mm utilisées lors de saluts des canons et achetées par l'OAB au GS Surplus du gouvernement. Lost trails

Paul Casaubon is trying to locate a friend of his, Jim Reekie. They went through depot together in Troop 153 in Shilo in 1967, and then were posted to 4RCHA. Paul did his jump course in Rivers in around November 1968 and was then posted to Airborne Battery in Edmonton. In the attached photo of Troop 153, Paul is positioned 3rd from the right top row, Jim is the next row down, 4th from the right. If anyone can assist, please contact Paul via e-mail at: pcasaubon@bigpond.com

Life After Service Survey 2016 (Executive Summary)

Veterans Affairs Canada

The Life After Service Studies (LASS) program of research is designed to further understand the transition from military to civilian life and ultimately improve the health of Veterans in Canada. LASS partners are Veterans Affairs Canada (VAC), the Department of National Defence/Canadian Armed Forces (DND/CAF), and Statistics Canada. LASS 2016 expands on the earlier studies from 2010 and 2013 by including family content and a longitudinal component in two major studies: The survey of health and well-being, and the record linkage for pre- and post-release income trends. This technical report provides initial cross-sectional findings for Regular Force Veterans from the 2016 survey. Additional analysis will be covered in subsequent reports.

Sondage sur la vie après le service militaire 2016: Sommaire

Anciens Combattants Canada

Le programme de recherche Études sur la vie après le service militaire (EVASM) vise à nous aider à mieux comprendre la transition de la vie militaire à la vie civile et en bout de ligne à améliorer la santé des vétérans au Canada. Les partenaires des EVASM sont Anciens Combattants Canada (ACC), le ministère de la Défense nationale/les Forces armées canadiennes (MDN/FAC) et Statistique Canada. Les EVASM 2016 élargissent les études antérieures réalisées en 2010 et 2013 en incluant la dimension familiale et une composante longitudinale dans deux études importantes : l'enquête sur la santé et le bien-être et le couplage de données sur les tendances en matière de revenu avant et après la libération. Ce rapport technique fournit les premières constatations transversales de l'enquête de 2016 pour les vétérans de la Force régulière. Une analyse supplémentaire sera traitée dans des rapports subséquents. LIRE PLUS

Puget Sound Coast Artillery Museum

The Puget Sound Coast Artillery Museum is located in Fort Worden State Park in Port Townsend, WA. Fort Worden is one of three forts comprising the Triangle of Fire which controlled ship access to Puget Sound. Construction at Fort Worden started in 1898 with the first guns manned in 1902 and the majority of the structures on the Fort predate WWI. The Puget Sound Coast Artillery Museum was established in 1976 to preserve and interpret Coast Artillery history with special emphasis on the Harbor Defenses of Puget Sound as they existed and functioned from the late 1800s to the end of World War II. The Museum also has exhibits showing the History of Fort Worden from it's beginnings in 1897 through it's use as a military base, a State Diagnostic and Treatment Center for adolescents, and finally as one of the premier State Parks in Washington. ### DEFENCE NEWS

Xponential 2017: U.S. Army exploring options for extended and improved MQ-1Cs

Jane's 360

The U.S. Army is exploring what added capabilities and payloads it might use on an extended range General Atomics Aeronautical Systems (GA-ASI) MQ-1C Gray Eagle unmanned aircraft system (UAS), said Lieutenant Colonel Jay Sawyer, product manager of the army's medium altitude and endurance office. The Gray Eagle Extended Range was internally developed by GA-ASI and Congress appropriated more funding so the army could buy it. The service has 19 on contract and is now finalizing the last production contract with some options, Lt Col Sawyer told AUVSI's annual Xponential unmanned systems conference in Dallas, TX. READ MORE

Patriot missiles deployed in NATO exercises in Baltics

Defense News

Lithuania's Defence Ministry says long-range Patriot missiles are being deployed for the first time in NATO military exercises in the Baltic republics. The Tobruq Legacy 2017 drill, which began recently, involves troops and air-defense systems from five NATO countries, including Britain, the U.S., Latvia and Poland. The ministry says the deployment "demonstrates the steadfast U.S. commitment to the security of Lithuania and its high readiness to send strategic capabilities" to the Baltic Sea region. ## U.S. Army fires, air defence units heading to Europe to address Russian threats

Jane's 360

To address Russian threats, the U.S. Army has decided to send more short-range air defence (SHORAD) and Multiple Launch Rocket System (MLRS) units to Europe in the coming years, according to Lieutenant General Ben Hodges, head of U.S. Army Europe (USAREUR). The decision stems partly from lessons learned observing Russian actions in Ukraine with electronic warfare, unmanned aircraft systems (UAS), artillery, and so on. READ MORE
