Canada to withdraw fighter jets from Syria and Iraq strikes

BBC News

Canadian Prime Minister-designate Justin Trudeau has confirmed he will withdraw Canadian fighter jets from the air strikes against Islamic State in Iraq and Syria. He informed U.S. President Barack Obama of his decision hours after leading his Liberal Party to victory in the polls. READ MORE

Lougheed House exhibit explores Canadian women's roles in WWII

The Calgary Herald

A new exhibit at Lougheed House showcases the lives of Alberta women who served in the armed forces during World War II. Though women had long been involved in war efforts, the Second World War marked the first time that they were actually an official part of the Canadian Forces. The Herald's Erika Stark spoke to Lougheed House curator Trisha Carleton about the museum's exhibit on the Canadian Women's Army Corps. READ MORE

Timmins Legion set to launch poppy campaign

Timmins Press

When poppies go out to the public in Timmins at the end of this month, you know that Bill Pigeon will be somewhere nearby. Pigeon, president of Royal Canadian Legion Branch 88, has been chairman of the annual Timmins poppy campaign for years. Pigeon is passionate about the importance of poppies, both as a symbol and as a vital fundraiser for the Legion. READ MORE

NATO veterans prepare for Remembrance Day

Cambridge Times

"I am a member of Hespeler Branch 272 of the Royal Canadian Legion," said army veteran Gerry Bryan. He is also the president of Unit 5 NATO Vets organization. NATO is the acronym for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in which the Canadian military plays a large role. He had the honour of playing the last post on his bugle while floating on a barge down the St. Lawrence River under the Jacques Cartier Bridge. READ MORE

Veteran Affairs has hired only 25 injured soldiers in the last decade

Ottawa Citizen

According to statistics from the Public Service Commission, Veterans Affairs only hired 25 former soldiers who had been medically released in the past decade, and just one in the last two years, as the government was emphasizing the need for such hirings. Over this 10-year period, the Department of National Defence has hired 838, or almost 71 per cent, of the total of 1,184 injured soldiers now working in the public service, according to the statistics. READ MORE

Remembrance Day-themed coins to be unveiled at Guelph's McCrae House

Guelph Mercury

McCrae House is to be the site for a Royal Canadian Mint official unveiling of new Remembrance-themed circulation coins. The ceremony at the birthplace of Lt. Col. John McCrae is to be followed by a public coin exchange where McCrae House visitors can trade their change for the new circulation coins. READ MORE

Manitoba Gunners Association Stands Down

Sad news was received from the Manitoba Gunners Association that they will be standing down after 70 years in existence. The Association has been a focus for gunners in the wider Manitoba area having had reunions over the years in Shilo, Brandon, Portage la Prairie and other gunner hot spots. The attendance at the Association's reunions has dropped over the past decades.

The Association Chair, WO (Ret'd), Doc Halliday noted, "We went from 130 members 20 years ago to 10 at this year's reunion; totally discouraging. We are donating our remaining funds to the Shilo Artillery Reunion for use towards the reunion in 2018. I will keep the Facebook page up and running so we Manitoba Gunners can stay in contact." READ
