DEFENCE NEWS

Deputy Minister: Veterans Affairs needs to show more respect to vets

Globe and Mail

Retired general Walt Natynczyk, who was Canada's top commander as troops were engulfed in intense combat in the Afghanistan war, says Veterans Affairs needs to address its failings because it has a duty to care for wounded vets and their families. READ MORE

Veterans Minister Kent Hehr's mandate letter — "One veteran, one standard"

Ottawa Citizen

Veterans and their families have earned our respect and gratitude. Veterans should not have to fight their own government for the support and compensation they have earned. As Minister of Veterans Affairs and Associate Minister of National Defence, your overarching goal will be to ensure that our government lives up to our sacred obligation to veterans and their families. I expect you to ensure that veterans receive the respect, support, care, and economic opportunities they deserve. READ MORE

Canada's forgotten Cold Warriors

Globe and Mail

The federal election campaign, coupled with recent compelling reporting in The Globe and Mail about Canada's military veterans, has stimulated welcome — and much needed — discussion about our veterans and the ways in which they are treated. But references in two recent and otherwise thoughtful articles follow a disturbing pattern.

CTV News

It took about 115 bags of blood to keep Cpl. Darren Fitzpatrick alive for two weeks after an IED severely injured him in 2010 while he was serving in Afghanistan. When he awoke in a German hospital with critical injuries, the 21-year-old soldier told his family he had one wish: to die at home in Edmonton. He was transported back to Canada and on March 20, 2010, he passed away. READ MORE

Canadian military bases on standby for refugee arrivals

CP24

Staff at Canadian Forces bases across the country are counting beds and making tentative plans to house and feed thousands of Syrian refugees expected to arrive in the coming weeks. Capt. Evelyne Lemire, a spokeswoman at CFB Gaagetown in New Brunswick, said they have not yet been told they will receive some of the 25,000 refugees the Canadian government has promised to accept by February. READ MORE

Canadian aircraft helping Britain hunt for Russian sub spotted near Scotland

Global News

Canada has sent a maritime patrol aircraft to help the United Kingdom search for a Russian sub believed to be patrolling off the Scottish coast. The Telegraph reports that Britain had to call in help from France and Canada after a Russian sub was spotted. The British government fears that the sub might be trying to spy on the U.K.'s Trident program — a sub-based nuclear warhead delivery system stationed in Scotland. READ MORE

How Canadian Forces might train anti-ISIL fighters

Ottawa Citizen

The Liberal government has come under fire for sticking to its plan to withdraw Canadian aircraft from the war against ISIL in Iraq and Syria. But Prime Minister Justin Trudeau plans to boost Canada's contribution of military personnel training Iraqi forces. Canada currently has up to 69 special forces soldiers in northern Iraq instructing Kurdish fighters. READ MORE

RCAA NEWS AND UPDATES*Take Post — The journal of the Toronto Gunner Community

RCAA
